MANDATES

Cochise County Juvenile Court Services (CCJCS) is subject to the Arizona Code of Judicial Administration, Powers and Duties of Probation Officers, Part 6, Chapter 1, Section 6-105, and the jurisdiction of the Juvenile Court is delineated in Title 8 of the Arizona Revised Statutes (ARS).

Juvenile Court Services further receives direction, support and funding from the Juvenile Justice Services Division (JJSD) of the Arizona Supreme Court, Administrative Office of the Courts (AOC), which is responsible for the effective administration of juvenile justice programs for delinquent and incorrigible youth in coordination with the juvenile courts.

Activities are consistent with constitutional, statutory, and administrative requirements which focus on treatment and rehabilitation as well as protection of the community and youth. Programs include delinquency prevention, treatment, probation, statewide automation and other related activities.

CCJCS receives state-appropriated funding provided and managed by the Treatment Budgeting and Program Development Unit of JJSD for the following programs:

Juvenile Treatment Services
Diversion Services
Family Counseling
Drug Court

Funding allows Juvenile Court Services to cover operational and staff costs as well as authorize juveniles under their jurisdiction to participate in services designed in accordance with the probation service case plan and conditions of probation.

THE JUVENILE COURT PROCESS

Youth may be charged by law enforcement for a charge that may be a status offense, which is an action that is prohibited only by persons under the age of 18 (i.e. runaway), or a delinquent offense, which is an action that if committed by an adult would be a criminal offense. From the point the youth is charged, there are several possibilities for how that complaint will be handled, and several factors are considered from the point of arrest, to include the nature of the charge, delinquent history and assessment of the youth to reoffend.

If the youth is detained:

The County Attorney has 24 hours to decide whether or not to file a petition (formal charges) against the youth. If the County Attorney does not file, the youth is released to his or her parents, legal guardians or other custodian. This does not necessarily mean that the case is dismissed; charges may be filed out-of-custody, or the complaint may be recommended for diversion.

If a petition is filed:

A Detention Hearing and Advisory Hearing must be held within 24 hours of the filing of the petition:

- The Detention Hearing determines whether there was probable cause for the arrest of the youth, and whether or not the youth will stay in detention until the next hearing.
- The Advisory Hearing is for the purpose of informing the youth and his/her parent, guardian or custodian of the allegations in the petition, and determining whether the youth admits or denies the allegations.

If there is a denial, an Adjudication Hearing (trial) must be held within 45 days of the Advisory Hearing. This hearing is held to determine the youth's guilt or innocence of the offenses in question. Often times a plea agreement is reached prior to this hearing, and there is no actual adjudication trial.

The last hearing is the Disposition Hearing. The Disposition Hearing must be held within 45 days of the Adjudication Hearing. The Disposition Hearing determines the consequences (sentence) for the youth who was found delinquent (guilty) during the Adjudication Hearing.

If the youth is NOT detained:

The County Attorney has 45 days to file a petition. The Advisory Hearing must be held within 30 days.

The Adjudication Hearing must be held within 60 days of the Advisory Hearing.

The Disposition Hearing must be held within 45 days of the Adjudication Hearing.

DIVERSION

Per Arizona Revised Statutes (ARS) 8-321, "...before a petition is filed or an admission or adjudication hearing is held, the county attorney may divert the prosecution of a juvenile who is accused of committing a delinquent act or a child who is accused of committing an incorrigible act to a community based alternative program or to a diversion program administered by the juvenile court." With the exception of certain offenses not eligible for diversion as per statute, Juvenile Court Services administers a diversion program through an Inter-Agency Diversion Agreement with the County Attorney's Office.

Diversion is a program in which the youth is assigned consequences by a Deputy Juvenile Probation Officer for his or her actions without going through a formal court process. In determining appropriate consequences, a Diversion Consequence Assignment Grid is utilized to ensure that like consequences are assigned to youth for like offenses. Probation Officers are also trained to consider several other factors to include: the youth's AZYAS risk score, the referral history, the severity of the offense, parental input, youth input, and victim input if applicable. Parents are involved in the decision-making process in assessing consequences.

The Diversion Program allows the youth to be assigned immediate consequences without receiving an official court record. In order for the youth to successfully complete the diversion program, he or she must comply with all of the assigned consequences. Consequences are required to be completed within 30 days. If he or she does not complete the consequences, the case is referred to the County Attorney's Office for prosecution.

JUVENILE PROBATION

Juvenile Court Services utilizes the Cochise County Supervision Strategies for Success case management plan to provide a uniform and consistent method of assessing adjudicated youth and providing appropriate levels of supervision and services to youth and their families. Juvenile Probation Officers utilize a case classification system consistent with values derived from the AZYAS Risk Assessment and Needs Assessment in evaluating the individual needs and risk to the community. Upon such assessment, the dispositional recommendations that come forth may include: Court-Ordered Diversion, placement on Standard Probation, placement on Juvenile Intensive Probation Supervision, participation in Drug Court, out-of-home placement or treatment, or commitment to the Arizona Department of Juvenile Corrections. Standard Orders of Probation are utilized statewide, again with the intent of assigning unilateral requirements to youth across the state.

Per Arizona Revised Statute 8-34I, B, the youth may be required to remain on probation until the age of 18, but probation may not extend past one year unless certain standards have been met. Juvenile Probation Officers are trained to utilize the Cochise County Probation Violation Response Grid, Probation Success Incentive Grid (2016) to determine appropriate responses and incentives. If the youth violates the conditions of probation or fails to complete the sanctions imposed by the Court, a Petition to Revoke Probation may be filed. If the Court finds the youth violated probation, probation may be revoked and a new disposition imposed such as placement in residential treatment, a change in the youth's current terms and conditions, and/or placement in the Department of Juvenile Corrections. When youth requiring a new disposition meet certain criteria, a department staffing team convenes to assist the assigned Juvenile Probation Officer with an appropriate recommendation.

JIPS

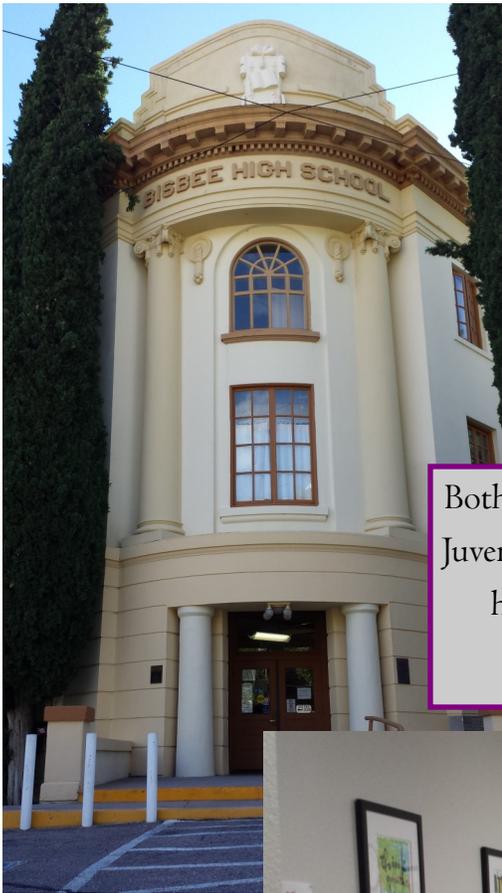

Juvenile Intensive Probation Supervision (JIPS) is a program designed to deter juvenile offenders who are in need of a highly structured, closely supervised program from out-of-home placement or overcrowded institutions. The JIPS program demonstrates to offenders that probation means accountability and consequences as well as productive rehabilitative activities. Since the beginning of the program in 1987, JIPS has provided intensive supervision to thousands of Arizona juveniles who might otherwise have been removed from their home. Intensive services provided to the youth within the family environment, when combined with surveillance, accountability and community protection, have proven to be effective alternatives to out-of-home placement. The emphasis of JIPS is frequent surveillance, work, education, accountability and home restriction. The purpose of the JIPS Program is to reduce commitments to the Arizona Department of Juvenile Corrections and other institutional or out-of-home placements.

The Arizona Detention Standards

Per the Arizona Detention Standards, A 1.3, Detention is the temporary confinement of a juvenile who requires secure care in a physically restricting facility that is completely surrounded by a locked and physically secure barrier with restricted ingress and egress for the protection of the juvenile or the community pending court disposition or as a condition of probation.

During the past few years, the justice system, for both juveniles and adults, has been transitioning on a national level. In addition to the current mandates and policies, the Cochise County Juvenile Detention Center is implementing the Juvenile Detention Alternatives Initiative (JDAI), which has substantially reduced the number of detained youth. With this initiative, detention staff are participating in a pilot program that is testing the validity of a newly developed statewide screening instrument, which is designed to identify those youth appropriate for detention and the resources provided for those youth.

Detention staff are also participating in the testing of the screening instrument recently adopted by the adult system to ensure that release decisions are based on the offender's risk to the community, and not the offender's ability to post bond.

Cochise County Juvenile Drug Court Mission Statement

It is the mission of the Cochise County Juvenile Drug Court Program to curtail substance abuse, reduce delinquent activity, further educational goals and improve family relationships through a strength-based therapeutic program that enables nonviolent juvenile offenders to become productive and responsible members of their communities.

Cochise County Drug Court helps troubled teens straighten out their lives

MARK MAIORANA
Mountain View News

The Cochise County Juvenile Drug Court was the topic of a presentation given to the League of Women Voters last Saturday at the Sierra Vista Public Library.

Kris Sullivan, who is the Drug Court Program Coordinator, talked about the program and brought along four teenagers who are currently going through the Drug Court program to tell of their experiences.

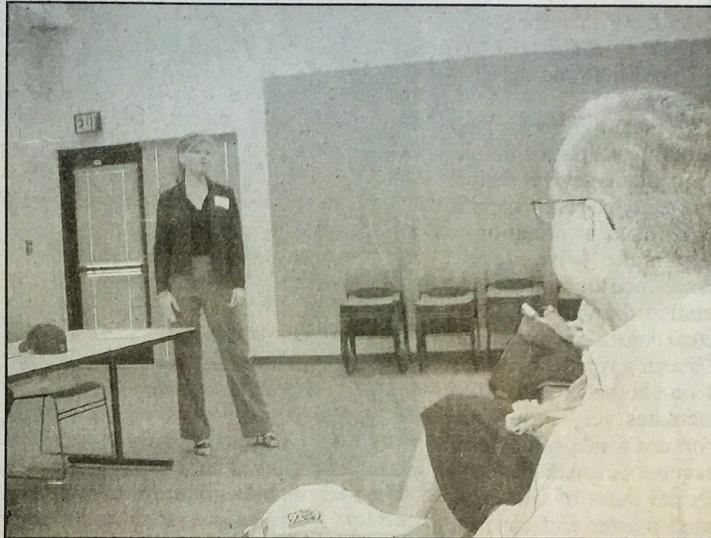

Sullivan said, "The mission of the Cochise County Juvenile Drug Court Program is to curtail substance abuse, reduce delinquent activity, further educational goals and improve family relations through a strength-based therapeutic program that enables non-violent, youthful offenders to become productive and responsible members of their communities."

She said Drug Court is a collaborative effort amongst numerous agencies. They include: Cochise County Juvenile Court Services, Cochise County Attorney's Office, Cochise County Public and Legal Defenders Office, Southeastern Arizona Behavioral Health Services, Cochise County Board of Supervisors, Benson Police Department, Sierra Vista Police Department, Douglas Police Department, Child Protective Services and the Arizona Department of Economic Security.

Sullivan said, "The Drug Court Program is a strength-based treatment program for juvenile offenders with moderate to severe substance abuse problems. It utilizes a non-traditional criminal justice approach in addressing substance abuse problems."

The Drug Court, Sullivan said, operates in a non-adversarial environment with direct contact between the judge and the offender.

Judge Ann Littrell is the county's Juvenile Court Judge whose courtroom is in Sierra Vista.

Cochise County Drug Court Program Coordinator Kris Sullivan talks about the Drug Court Program at a meeting of the League of Women Voters.

"The Drug Court serves eligible adjudicated offenders between 14 and 17 years of age," Sullivan said. "It's a one-year program that requires substance abuse treatment, family counseling, regular court hearings, intensive supervision, drug testing and educational achievement. Members of the Drug Court Team assist participants and their families in meeting the requirements of the program."

She said juveniles must meet certain criteria before they are considered for acceptance into the program.

For example, she said, juvenile offenders with a substance abuse problem that is negatively affecting their lives such as failing or dropping out of school, causing family problems, unable to get or keep a job, would be considered for the program.

Other considerations would include whether the juvenile and their parents are able to participate with the requirements of the program and treatment. Also, whether the juvenile has committed drug related violations of probation conditions and if the juvenile commits a subsequent drug related offense.

Juveniles who are not eligible for the program are those who are psychotic, suicidal, commit violent or sex offenses or who otherwise pose a danger to the community.

Sullivan said, "The program provides services and support for the juveniles and their parents to address substance abuse problems and to prevent further delinquent behavior. The juvenile and their parents are required to complete a three-phased treatment program, attend weekly court hearings, further educational goals, comply with the conditions of the program and be regularly drug tested."

The Drug Court is currently funded by the county and from a grant from the Governor's Office.

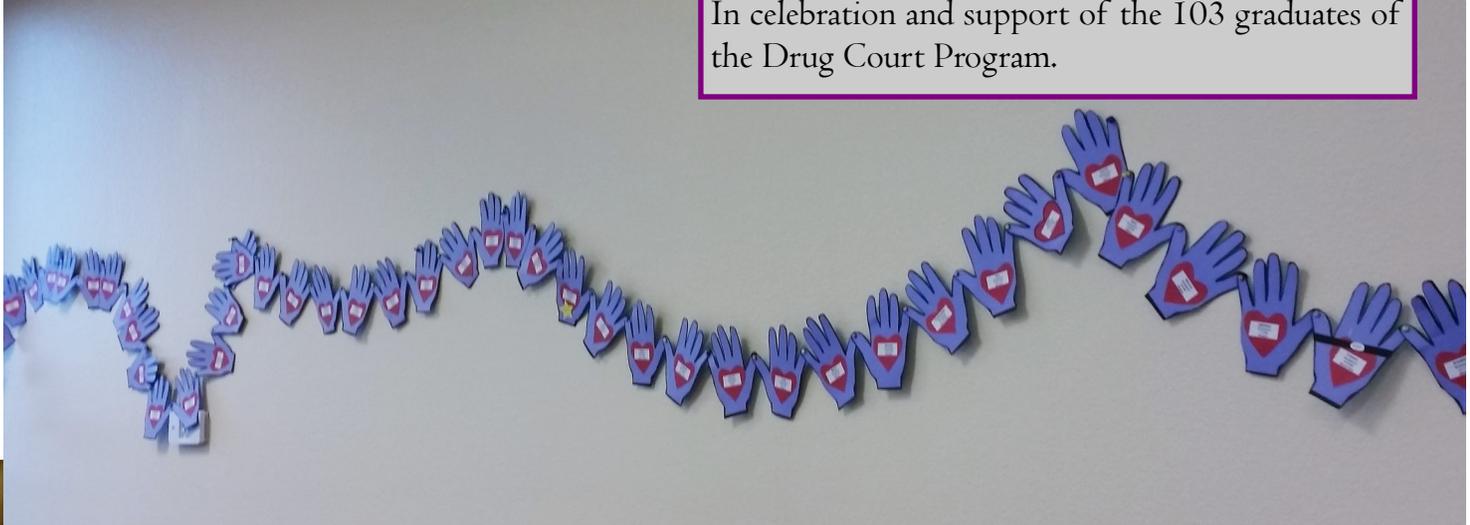

She said, "The first phase of the program is about building new bridges, it's about trust and rebuild-

The Cochise County Juvenile Drug Court was first implemented as a pilot program in July, 2000. The program originally served 20 participants in the communities of Douglas, Bisbee, and Sierra Vista. In 2003, a third Drug Court site was implemented to serve the Benson/Willcox communities. Drug Court is currently funded for a total capacity of 36 participants and their family members. The Cochise County Juvenile Drug Court is funded through the Administrative Offices of the Courts, Cochise County Board of Supervisors, and JABG grant.

JUVENILE DETENTION ALTERNATIVES INITIATIVE

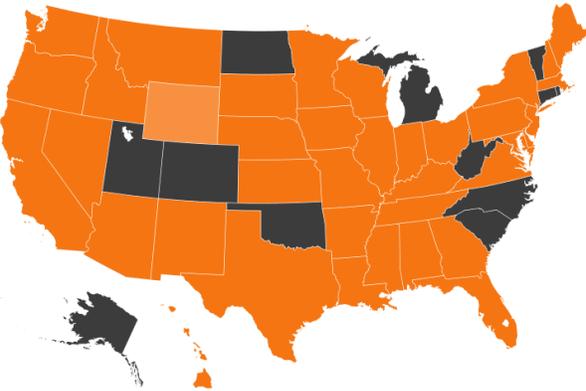

8 Core Strategies

The JDAI model is built around the following eight core strategies:

1. Promoting collaboration between juvenile court officials, probation agencies, prosecutors, defense attorneys, schools, community organizations and advocates;
2. Using rigorous data collection and analysis to guide decision making;
3. Utilizing objective admissions criteria and risk-assessment instruments to replace subjective decision-making processes to determine whether youth should be placed into secure detention facilities;
4. Implementing new or expanded alternatives to detention programs — such as day and evening reporting centers, home confinement and shelter care — that can be used in lieu of locked detention;
5. Instituting case processing reforms to expedite the flow of cases through the system;
6. Reducing the number of youth detained for probation rule violations or failing to appear in court, and the number held in detention awaiting transfer to a residential facility;
7. Combatting racial and ethnic disparities by examining data to identify policies and practices that may disadvantage youth of color at various stages of the process, and pursuing strategies to ensure a more level playing field for youth regardless of race or ethnicity;
8. Monitoring and improving conditions of confinement in detention facilities.

The Purpose of Detention in Cochise County is to provide a safe and secure environment for youth who require temporary out of home placement. Detention is a setting that provides protection to the community and ensures the youth's appearance in court when no other environment can accomplish these goals.

A site-based effort to reduce the use of detention — the holding of youth before adjudication — and increase more effective interventions.

Annie E. Casey Foundation

Detention is a crucial early phase in the juvenile court process. Placement into a locked detention center pending court significantly increases the odds that youth will be found delinquent and committed to corrections facilities and can seriously damage their prospects for future success.

Yet many detained youth pose little or no threat to public safety.

When the Foundation launched JDAI as a pilot project in the early 1990s, overreliance on detention was widespread and growing nationwide . Using a model rooted in eight core strategies, JDAI proved effective in helping participating jurisdictions safely reduce their detention populations. Based on its success, JDAI has been adopted by an ever-growing number of jurisdictions (as indicated by the orange above), leading to dramatic declines in detention populations.

Prime Objectives of JDAI

- To detain the right juveniles for the right reasons
- To avoid drawing low/medium risk juveniles deeper into the Juvenile Justice System
- To strive for uniformity in detention decisions
- Decrease the number of youth unnecessarily or inappropriately detained
- Reduce the number of youth who fail to appear in court & minimize the risk of reoffending
- Redirect public funds towards effective juvenile justice processes & public safety strategies
- Reduce the disproportionate minority confinement
- Improve the juvenile justice system overall

Detention Decisions

Risk Based:

Criteria should focus on specific detention-related risks:

Public Safety:

Risk of reoffending

FTA Risk:

Risk of failing to appear at a court hearing

Before a Juvenile is Detained ...

- Call the Detention Center (803-3000)
- Provide the Detention Officer with the information needed to complete the DSI— Important to answer all questions asked

Information Needed

- Accurate information about the charges (including classification of felony/ misdemeanor)
- Information for determining aggravating/ mitigating factors:
 - Attending school or participating in extracurricular activities?
 - Multiple unrelated felony charges in?
 - Employed?
 - Appear under the influence?
 - History of fire setting or animal cruelty?

Consider the Alternatives

- Grandparents, Relatives, Older Siblings, or Family Friends for the night or for a few hours
- Hospital if the youth is under the influence and/or suicidal
- DCS when there is no parent willing to take the youth
- Request for an accelerated intake date and time
- The development of “Next-Day” Hearings

We Need You!

- Understand the dangers of incarcerating youth
- Recognize that youth are held equally accountable for out-of-custody referrals
- Make calls to Detention so that a pattern is established
- Share with your officers what you learned today
- Consistent collaboration
